

A COLORED DUEL

IN WHICH THE CHALLENGER RUNS AWAY.

Wounded Honor Brings the Men Together. But a Love of Life Induces Their Separation.

ATLANTA, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Georgia duels will be started when they find what a mortal effect their actions are having on the duels. The following story of the last Georgia duel takes the rag off the bush. It comes here direct from Homer, Ga., where the

TWO NEGRO PRINCIPALS LIVE.

Will Guber and Major Hill, two stalwart rivals belonging to the colored society, became enraged at each other in the heat of debate on Saturday night.

A measure of great importance was being considered, and Guber dropped his thick underlip, and in a threatening and insolent manner, began calling Hill names, among the rest the vile epithet of a "thieving, undermining scoundrel" was used, whereupon Hill demanded a retraction. Guber held his position, resenting the charge, and soon sides were taken, and the society broke up in a row. Leading darkies interfered, and succeeded in getting Hill off home.

Sunday morning, before sunrise, Hill had chosen his best man, and sent a challenge to Guber, in the following polite language:

Hill Smith, Ga., September 30.—Will Guber: Last night you insulted me, des like no nigger ever done before. In this matter my honor is at stake, and I demand satisfaction of a gentleman. Meet me at 6 o'clock sharp on the Hudson river, in de morning at 6 o'clock sharp. Bring all de weapons you got, an' if you don't keep your eyes skinned I'll out your liver into min's meek. Dis will be handed you by Henry Steady, and you can send your answer back by him or somebody else. I'll be dere.

Guber had fallen into a Sunday morning snooze, and was still asleep when Steady arrived with the blood-thirsty message. He sent six miles up the river for Jake Anderson, his best friend, and the answer was delayed until 2 o'clock, when major received the following:

FLAT CREEK, September 28.—Major Hill: Your letter was handed to me by dat good-for-nothing loafer, Henry Steady, dis mornin' and I'll des say dat dis nigger don't swaller de things what his tongue jugs out an' I'll be dere at 6 o'clock. I duan't de 'casion, honah or no honah! I'll be dere, time you're ready, and don't you forget! I'm a cummin'.

THE GROUND CHOSEN.

The news flew on the wings of the wind. A party of whites caught on to the duel and attempted to disperse the rebels, but the darkies skipped out and arranged to meet on an island five miles up the river. Twelve paces were measured off, and the combatants faced each other with "swampy angels" in hand. The arrangement was to fire at counting one, two, three. About twenty darkies surrounded them, including physicians, reporters and sporting men, and some of them tried to effect a settlement, but the combatants were bent on having more. The seconds were also armed to the teeth and anxious for the fight. Henry Steady gave the word—one, two. Then Major spoke:

"Hold on, dar!" Jake Anderson drew his pistol and cocked it. Hill says: "See here, dis nigger alius been a peccable darky an' lub's de law. I hates to do a thing like o' dis, but Will Guber, if you don't take back what you said Sat'day night, den dis nigger's gwine to stick to dis thing from thick and thin, an' hab his honah back or die in de 'tempt'."

Guber cried out: "Gen'l'men, he's broke de rule, and I's gwine to. But just at that time Steady sprang out with a revolver presented, and cried: "De first man what moves I'll shoot him."

SAFETY IN FLIGHT.

The positions were reversed again, and the fight commenced at number two. Hill backed and whirled, howling at the top of his voice, "Don't shoot," and was soon splashing about in the river and on the other side, leaping at break-neck speed down the river, leaving the modern sporting men and the victorious duellists in his glory.

One shot was fired over Hill's head, cutting some of the leaves off the trees. Hill was seen last near the Currylee last night still hurrying along, and Guber is on the lookout for the sheriff.

All enjoyed the last Georgia duel hugely. "There is a marked difference in nigger and human nature," said one of the party. Another said: "Didn't dat nigger run do w'en he got turn't?"

JAKE YOUNG CAUGHT.

HOW THE CAPTURE WAS BROUGHT ABOUT.

The Incendiarism of a Church Leads to His Detection—The Tell-Tale Shot—His Murder of Arch Golden and Other Crimes.

TR-ty, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Jake Young, who has eluded the officers since he killed Arch Golden, at Tifton, early in the spring, was captured this evening near Tifton. Some one in the night fired the new Methodist church at that place, a few weeks ago, before the completion, but it was discovered in time to prevent much damage, and the members

PLACED A WATCH at the church since. Monday night last the watchman saw a man approach the church and pour kerosene against it. He then raked the shavings up and struck a match and set it on fire. As the light blazed up, the watchman saw the man with a Winchester rifle, first rounds, but the party escaped. He then extinguished the flames, and next morning there were signs of blood on the ground where he shot at the incendiary. A posse was formed, and they traced the blood to a house near Tifton, where it was guarded all day yesterday and today. They raided it and captured Young after a desperate fight. He had been shot in the hip, and they are sure it was him that fired the church. He is a desperate character, and it is supposed that he burned the Masonic hall and Methodist church there last year. He was found here about 1 p. m. It spread rapidly, and notwithstanding the efforts of the fire department, comparatively little cotton was saved. The loss will fall, it is supposed, entirely upon the Central railroad, and will be more than $12,000. The severity of water in making the fire so rapid, and the fact that from accomplishing as much as they otherwise would.

THE STEVEDORE ATTACKED.

Captain James Ward Gets Into a Difficulty.

SAVANNAH, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Samuel Sampson, an old watchman along the wharves, tried to shoot Captain James Ward, the stevedore, when Sampson caught up to him. The exchange, at 12:30 today, Captain Ward's escape was narrow. He was walking from Drayton towards Abercorn, on the north side of the river, when Sampson caught up to him. Sampson accused the stevedore of keeping him from getting a ship to watch yesterday. Captain Ward said that he had nothing to do with the matter, except that he had forgotten to speak to the captain about it. Sampson accused the stevedore, who turned to go into Richardson & Barnard's office.

"I will kill you," said Sampson, and he put his right hand into a pocket. "I thought he was after a knife, and shot him," said Ward. "He fell down on his back. As he got up he drew a pistol and put it in my face. I caught his arm and pushed it aside just as the pistol went off."

The bullet went down in J. K. Garmany's office. Sampson had his finger on the trigger, and tried to fire again. Captain Ward was very angry and called Sampson a damned scoundrel. Captain John Dillon went to the stevedore's assistance, and the weapon was taken away. Sampson was locked up.

ATHENS, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Preparations for the coming Georgia country and stock exhibit are going on rapidly. The board of directors met this afternoon and transacted some routine business. It has been arranged to have the Clark Hotel and the University College drill one day during the fair.

A celebrated astronomer will make a daring leap when five hundred feet in mid air, and descend in a parachute.

Baseball and racing will be especially looked after. The speeches will be well worth listening to. Everything points to success.

HE QUIT PREACHING.

Because He Was Afraid of Being Turned Into a Horse.

ATHENS, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Mr. A. O. Lyndon, one of Athens' most reliable and prominent citizens, tells the following good one on an old Baptist minister he once knew, and avows that everything is true. He knew two Baptist preachers who were in the habit of preaching in a certain church. One night, and yet were not very friendly. One night one of the preachers had a dream. He dreamed that his church was turned into a wagon, and all the members were in it, and that he had changed to a horse and was pulling them. But the thing which hurt was that the driver was the other preacher, and he used the whip freely on his own brother. The old man awoke from the dream, but he never preached again. Moreover, he never again went inside the church where he formerly preached. He really believed that if he did so he would turn to a horse and the other Baptist minister would be his driver.

However, there are now here representatives from twelve states and one territory, as follows: Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Indian Territory, Kentucky, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, District Columbia and Georgia. Our popular and distinguished president, together with his co-laborers in the faculty, are highly pleased with the opening and prospects of the college.

FLAMES IN GEORGIA.

COTTON BALES SET ON FIRE IN GRIFFIN.

The Same Story From Dawson. With a Loss of $12,000—The Work of Extinguishing the Flames—Fires Elsewhere.

GRIFFIN, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Twenty-seven bales of cotton were burned at the Central railroad yards here last night. The cotton was in a Savannah and Western car, destined for Savannah from Senola. To whom the cotton was consigned could not be ascertained. It was way blazed straight through to destruction, and Agent Reed had no information as to whom it was shipped. The origin of the fire cannot be positively stated, as it is not known whether it was the work of an incendiary or accident caused from a spark from a passing train. The latter is most probable, as the fire was discovered early in the morning. The fire started from the engine of the passenger train passing here about 1 p. m. It spread rapidly, and notwithstanding the efforts of the fire department, comparatively little cotton was saved. The loss will fall, it is supposed, entirely upon the Central railroad, and will be more than $12,000. The severity of water in making the fire so rapid, and the fact that from accomplishing as much as they otherwise would.

BURNING OF COTTON BALES.

Two Hundred and Fifty Bales Burned in a Fire in Dawson.

DAWSON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The cotton yard at the depot at this place, together with 250 bales of cotton, was entirely consumed by fire today. The fire originated from a spark from the engine of the passenger train passing here about 1 p. m. It spread rapidly, and notwithstanding the efforts of the fire department, comparatively little cotton was saved. The loss will fall, it is supposed, entirely upon the Central railroad, and will be more than $12,000. The severity of water in making the fire so rapid, and the fact that from accomplishing as much as they otherwise would.

Will Keep Right On.

WASHINGTON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Irvin & Callan, the enterprising firm who had their store at the depot at this place, together with the first mill for another, and workmen are now busy building another house of brick more substantial than the first. They gain a good deal of their business from the cotton trade, and a good deal of cotton seed.

Sparks of Fire.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Sparks from an engine set fire to five bales of cotton in the Central railroad cotton yards on yesterday. The cotton was nearly all burned up, but it could be extinguished, and it was a hard fight for some time to keep the fire from spreading.

THE STATE FAIR.

A Busy Day Preparing for the Agricultural Exhibition.

MAKON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Secretary Nibbel says that this has been the busiest day he has had this season on state fair matters. Entries have poured in all day, until now but little space remains for other exhibitors. One of the finest entries is a pair of horses from McCrae, of Danville, Ky., who will show the finest exhibit of short horn cattle ever seen in the south. Agent H. H. Cary, who has just been here traveling over the state, writes most encouragingly today of the bright prospects of the fair. He writes that Washington and Jefferson counties will be well represented. An entry made today that will be elaborate and attractive is that for the best individual display of farm products by Miss Mary Smith, of Zella Zetta, the "queen of the clouds." Information concerning the races shows that many fine speeders will be present, and the trotting and running races are as excellent as have been seen in Georgia in many years. There will be fully twelve companies entered for the grand cavalcade tournament, the prizes of which are larger than ever given at any previous tilt in this state.

TRENTON'S GREAT MISE.

Fabulous Prices for Town Lots in Cornfields.

DAKOTON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The town of Trenton, eighteen miles south of Chattanooga, in Dade county, on the Alabama Great Southern railroad, is on a great boom occasioned by the reported closing of a big deal by a northern syndicate, involving the purchase of large tracts of mineral and town lands, and the pledging of the syndicate to spend $600,000 in improvements. Hundreds of people are there from Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and other states, laying off old corn fields, etc., into town lots. People are fairly wild, and large amounts of property are changing hands. Yesterday's sales amounted to $40,000 and today's reached about $50,000. Another deal, known as the Puding mountain deal, is now on foot, and part of the money to consummate it has been placed in the Chattanooga bank. This deal involves thousands of acres of iron and coal land, and the location of the furnace and rolling mill. Eastern men are behind this, and it will probably be closed in a few days. This will cause greater excitement than ever. The scenes of 1886 are being re-enacted in Trenton, and large sums are being realized.

SUIT AGAINST THE CITY OF MACON.

George R. Horne Files a Suit for $20,000 Damages.

MAKON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—In Bibb superior court today Bacon & Rutherford, attorneys for George R. Horne, filed a suit against the city of Macon for $20,000 damages, alleging that at the state fair at the park in 1888, while standing in the grand stand watching the racing, a large barrel of the building fell out of place, struck him on the head, and injured him so severely that he was confined to bed for three weeks. He further alleges that the city has impaired his memory and weakened his retentive faculties to such an extent that he fears he is ruined for life. At the time of the accident he was making $3,000 per year. He alleges that the brace was insecurely fastened and fell by reason of the negligence and carelessness of the city of Macon.

Another Suit for Damages.

MAKON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Colonel F. J. M. Daly filed another suit to the long array already entered against the Dummy Line company. He sues for $375 cash money alleged to have been spent by him in obtaining a charter, etc., for the company. Judge Matt Freeman will probably represent Colonel Daly.

The Cordelle Bank.

CORDELE, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—At a meeting of the stockholders of the bank of Cordelle this morning the capital stock was increased from $50,000 to $100,000. Each stockholder had the privilege of increasing the amount of stock at par, and the balance of the stock will be disposed of at $10. Nearly every stockholder doubled his stock. The old board of directors was re-elected, with the exception of Mr. C. E. Hamilton, who is succeeded by Mr. J. H. Hoge as general agent. Mr. Hoge is a former partner in the bank, and was formerly president of the company. Mr. Hoge was formerly passenger ticket agent at the union depot.

New Railroad Appointments.

MAKON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—A circular has just been issued by A. C. Knapp, traffic manager of the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad, announcing the appointment of Mr. C. B. Wilburn as general freight agent, and Mr. J. H. Hoge as general passenger agent of the company. Mr. Hoge was formerly passenger ticket agent at the union depot.

THE BILL WAS LOST

TO ABOLISH DISTINCTION BETWEEN JURIES.

The Discussion in the House Yesterday on the Measure—The Vote—Other Proceedings, Notes, Etc.

The bill to abolish the distinction between grand and traverse juries came up as the special order in the house yesterday.

The bill, though receiving a majority of the votes cast, failed of a constitutional majority, and was lost.

A motion to reconsider will be made today.

MR. FOUTE, of BARTOW, who is the author of the bill, made the opening speech in its behalf. The speech was generally complimentary to the jury system as it is now administered.

"This bill," said Mr. Foute, "seeks to amend the constitution of 1868, article 18, § 4, which provides for the selection of juries."

The proposition is to strike out the words "grand and traverse juries" and insert the words "jurors." The bill is to be read by the clerk of the house.

quainted with the witnesses, does not know their character, and is not in a position to judge of the truth of the evidence. It is like an unacquainted jury, and cannot tell the value to attach to their intelligence and impartiality.

A new trial gives to the jurymen the party the advantage of an honest party. One trial discloses the weak points of the case, and affords an opportunity to a party to supply the defects by further evidence.

Not always consistent with justice.

Some of the objections to the present system are: 1. That the discrimination made in the selection of grand and traverse juries is derogatory to the latter.

It is humiliating and degrading to the latter. To be a member of the grand jury of a county is recognized as a position of importance and distinction.

IT IS A GOOD SHOW.

SELLS BROTHERS & BARRETT COME AND GO.

They Leave Everybody Behind Them in Fine Humor—They Give a Good Show, and Will Put in Next at Griffin.

Twenty-five thousand people saw the two performances given by the Sells Brothers & Barrett's grand united shows yesterday.

More than four times that many witnessed the street parade.

And the street parade was fine.

But the show was much better.

The canvas was pitched on Jackson street, near West, and the parade moved through the city about 11 o'clock. It came down Wheat to Ivy and up Ivy to Lloyd. At Mitchell the line started toward Whitehall and on to Broad. Then it headed along Broad to Marietta and then to Peachtree and back to the tent. Lloyd, Alabama, Whitehall, Mitchell, Broad, Marietta and Peachtree streets were all thronged. The windows along the route were full, while the sidewalks did not offer standing room. The procession pleased everybody, and whetted their appetites for the show. On Whitehall the crowd was denser than it has been at any time since the exposition, and everyone was delighted with the street show.

Immediately after the procession went by the crowd began to move toward the grounds. The two ticket wagons could supply the demand only as fast as the ticket holders in each could dash out the tickets.

The main entrance had a triple gate, and through the three gates crowds poured incessantly from one half past two to half past four after the show began.

And the half hour they missed was worth the price paid at the door.

Those who went in early saw all the show.

And it was a show which pleased them.

The canvas containing the animals was arranged unlike any show heretofore. The cages were placed in a complete circle and within that circle were attractions just as good as any in the tent.

The lions, tigers, hyenas, hippopotami, seals, birds and elephants were all above the average and were greatly admired.

A cage contained a lioness and a half a dozen cats, six weeks old, and very tame.

The cages were kind and docile and won many admiring glances.

The orchestra, in the center of the ring of cages, caught the ladies.

In the big tent there were two rings, a stage, a bar, and a tight-rope.

Each an ordinary show in itself.

The band opened the show, of course, but with the first strains came the grand imposing musical strains.

This was worked in two rings, on the elevated stage and on the hippodrome track, all at the same time.

In both rings were riders in handsome costumes on the stage was a fine band, while the hippodrome ring showed up animals and actors in profusion.

Then the hippodrome were introduced and driven around the hippodrome ring.

Park Melrose, who finished the first tight rope, danced upon one some one's retched for.

The leaping and vaulting was never done better.

The next went over three, four, five and six elephants, turning as they went. Then Billy Dutton walked away with all the vaulting by doing a double turn as he went over.

The crowning act of the show came next. It was Billy Sells and Billy Shawles.

Each in each ring, doing a grand equestrian act. Billy Sells has always been a great favorite in Atlanta and his work added many friends to his name.

He is now called the equestrian meteor and he flies through the air like a meteor.

His riding is fine, finer than any one else in the world. Billy Shawles, who resides in the other ring, at the same time will make Billy Sells study hard.

Well, Shawles gives great promise and works with an energy rarely seen. Like Sells, he catches the crowd.

The Melrose family on the bicycle are just as good as they were three years ago.

The female equestrians, Miss Addie Bell and Miss Jessie Ashton, proved themselves champions of the arena.

Reco and Reno's contortion acts were good.

Dinner, drink and performances were good.

The leap for life, daring and dangerous, caught the audience and produced applause.

Billy Dutton, who has been jumping from the rug to the horses' backs for thirty-five years, risked himself as never before.

In fact, Dutton grows younger as the years pile up. He is one of the hardest workers in the business and always tries to please his audience.

And he always wins.

The gladiatorial act by the Lilford brothers will never grow old.

Signor Blau, who rides, reins and drives thirty-five horses around the hippodrome ring, caught the house. The act is not only attractive, but thrilling and dangerous. Blau rides the last two and drives thirty-three three abreast in front three times around the ring at full speed.

Sid, the elephant clown, is just as good as ever, but Sid would be nothing without Lew Sunlin, who handles him.

The hippodrome races, managed by Colonel Charles Seelye—than whom no show has a better or more accommodating press agent—were grand. One race after another catches the audience until they whoop and yell in excitement caught from the work. One of the races a pony race with monkey riders, catches everybody.

The elephant hat race, the ladies hat race, and the grand Roman four-horse chariot race catch everybody.

From the first act to the last, the show is one of the best ever seen in Atlanta.

Over 14,000 people were out in the afternoon and standing room was in demand. In the evening the seating capacity, 15,000, was fully tested and the Sells were happy.

Than the Melrose Sells there are no better showmen in the country. They always strive to please, and they always please.

They have no objectionable hangers-on, and the grounds are free from fakes.

Colonel Seelye, who takes care of every portion, has been eight years with the show, and that is a compliment in itself. He knows everybody, and everybody likes him.

Physicians Confess.

All honest, conscientious physicians who give B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) a trial, frankly admit its superiority over all other blood medicines.

Dr. W. J. Adair, Rockmart, Ga., writes: "I regard B. B. as one of the best blood medicines."

Dr. A. H. Roscoe, Nashville, Tenn., writes: "All reports of B. B. are favorable, and its speedy action is truly wonderful."

Dr. J. W. Rhodes, Crawfordsville, Ga., writes: "I confess B. B. is the best and quickest medicine for rheumatism I have tried."

Dr. S. J. Farmer, Crawfordsville, Ga., writes: "I cheerfully recommend B. B. as a fine tonic alterative. It cures all rheumatic affections not perceptible good."

Dr. C. H. Montgomery, Jacksonville, Ala., writes: "My mother trusted on my getting B. B. for her rheumatism, as her case stubbornly resisted the usual remedies. She experienced immediate relief, and her improvement has been truly wonderful."

A prominent physician who wishes his name not given, says: "A patient of mine whose case of tertiary syphilis was surely killing him, and which no treatment seemed to check, was entirely cured with about twelve bottles of B. B. He was fairly made up of skin and bones and terrible ulcers."

For Nervous Debility

Use Herford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. A. M. Birley, Mitchell, Ark., says: "I have used it in a number of cases of nervous debility, with very good results."

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Patrolman T. F. Aldridge is Allowed a Month Off Duty.

Thirty-five days' leave of absence was granted Patrolman T. F. Aldridge yesterday.

It was done on his own application, and that application reads as follows:

Atlanta, Oct. 2.—Captain A. B. Connelly, Chief of Police—Dear Sir: I most respectfully ask leave of absence from the police force for thirty-five days from this date.

I ask this leave on account of an indigestion which has been found against me by the grand jury on ex parte evidence.

I am innocent of this charge, but so highly do I esteem the honor and good name of the police force of Atlanta, and so highly do I appreciate the kindness and confidence reposed in me here by the police commission and my superior officers on the force that I ask to be relieved from service until I can demand a trial and stand acquitted of this charge.

Very respectfully yours,

T. F. ALDRIDGE.

Approved: A. B. CONNELLY, Chief of Police.

Approved: J. W. ELLISON, Chairman, Board Police Commissioners.

As stated in the application Patrolman Aldridge felt like he had been placed in an embarrassing position by the indictment of the grand jury in the East Point matter, and he simply desired an opportunity to set himself right before the public before continuing in active service on the police force.
